In the Hotels and Restaurants

NEW YORK'S newest dining and dancing place, Larue, at Broadway and Forty-seventh street, opened its doors last evening. Judging from the gathering of "first nighters," no greater assurance of success of this new addition to Broadway attractions can be had. An atmosphere prevailed here that marks this establishment as the real Parisian rendezvous of New York. The entire decorative scheme has been so designed that it cannot fail to meet with the approval of a discriminating patronage who will gather here nightly. A spacious dance floor and an excellent orchestra add to an evening's dining amid harmonious surroundings. The finest foods that the markets afford are to be had at Larue. This feature alone will establish for Larue a reputation second to none on the Rialto.

Hark ye! Hark ye! Halloween will be festively celebrated on Friday evening next at Murray's Roman Gardens on West Forty-second street. The Gardens are to be transformed into a fairyland, with fat, grinning pumpkins casting weird lights o'er the place, and to lend enchantment to the scene there'll be a "candle" in the center of the revolving floor and a witch stirring a mysterious brew in the suspended caldron. Yep, and there'll be goblin turbans for the men and witches' hats to be worn at a coquette's angle by the ladies, making them more bewitching than ever. Sure, there'll be favors for everything, even little missives telling your fortune. For the occasion a special table d'hôte dinner is to be served. Of course there'll be dancing continuously from noon to closing time.

The new autumn revue, "Cheer Up, New York," at Thomas Healy's Golden Glades, Broadway and Sixty-sixth street, is attracting capacity audiences nightly. Those who have viewed the piece during the last week unanimously agree that it is by far the most elaborate musical entertainment ever offered under the guise of a restaurant show. Aside from establishing a new high-water mark for restaurant entertainment, Mr. Healy's new production sets a pace which competitors will not find easy to catch up with. The production is divided into two parts and a series of colorful episodes which combine a dazzling ice fashion show and an original musical comedy of "full grown" proportions. For the ice show Mr. Healy has assembled a galaxy of international favorites such as Cathleen Pope, Elise and Paulsen in their thrilling Apache Dance, Harley Davidson and Albert Jaroske, exponents of spectacular skating; May Judels and the Golden Glades Quintet of Skating Beauties.

Although the ice numbers are a dominant factor in the success of the new Healy revue, there is also an ample sprinkling of spirited musical offerings that go to make it a most diverting and well balanced performance. Prominent in the list of songs satires are "The Spirit of Champagne," introduced by Helen Hardick and the beauty ensemble; "Strike! Strike! Strike!" "Ragging the minute," by Ethel Dean and a bevy of shimmying choristers; "The Swing Song," by Yvonne Darle and High Fliers, and a colorful fashion extravaganza, "A Trip Through the Orient," in which a dazzling array of beauteous parade by in whirlwind succession in gorgeous costumes representing the prodigious abandonment of the Far East. All in all the new Healy revue combines everything that is worth while in the way of lively entertainment. Two performances are given nightly, one at the dinner hour and the other after theatre time.

A Halloween celebration will be held at the Terrace Garden Dance Palace next Friday evening. On Tuesday evening Evelyn Hubbell's Terrace Garden Dancers will give an exhibition of the Polish folk dance known as the Kasatchek. The attendance at the Dance Palace continues very large at all nightly sessions and Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

The Palais Royal, at Broadway and Forty-eighth street, will inaugurate its autumn season to-morrow night with the premiere of "The Palais Royal Revue of 1919." The new piece, which is the joint effort of Andre Sherri and A. Baldwin Sloane, is calculated to eclipse all previous successes at this delightful "Continental" music hall. Mr. Sloane provided the musical setting for an earlier Palais Royal success, "Venus on Broadway," and is also responsible for the tuneful score of "Greenwich Village Follies." However, Mr. Sloane is certain that the new Palais Royal girl and music show will contain more tuneful numbers than anything he has hitherto contributed to the metropolitan stage. The list of reservations for premiere night includes many persons prominent in society, theatrical and financial circles, which at least augurs that this latest and greatest of Palais Royal offerings will be welcomed by a representative audience.

With the extension of Broadway restaurant life brought about by the vast influx of persons of wealth from every section of the country, there has been no more welcome departure than that which is represented in the famous Churchill restaurant at Broadway and Forty-ninth street. It is an innovation built upon the sound plan which guides the composition of all Broadway's achievements nowadays. Every feature of it is as proportionally great as is the performance of the Marvellous Millers, who are in reality probably the greatest whirlwind dancers Broadway night life has ever known. Miss Dowling, the little, Franciscan beauty, shines in another sphere as a singer, and together with Henry and Lizzelle Mack Kennedy and a host of other well known artists combine to make Churchill's colorful cabaret delightfully entertaining.

Kelly & Adler's E. Z. Riders furnish the entertainment features and dance music which is continuous during the entire afternoon.

As a special entertainment feature at the Babst Harlem Dance Hall on Wednesday evening Evelyn Hubbell's Terrace Garden Dancers, twenty young women, will present the Polish dance known as the Kasatchek in costume. On Friday evening there will be a Halloween celebration, including a number of surprises. Chaperons provide partners for all patrons who have.
